

Transforming Leadership

An LDF Training Intensive

Using the Leadership Development Framework in leadership transformation

A three day training and authorisation programme for those who lead and those who develop leaders

2nd to 4th May 2012

West Dean College, Chichester, UK

The purpose of this training intensive is to enable participants to use this powerful framework and profile in supporting the development of leaders.

Participants will

- Develop an in-depth understanding of the Leadership Development Framework
- Learn to use the LDF as a powerful way of developing others
- Learn how to use the sentence completion form and the resulting profile with individuals and teams
- Extend their skills in coaching using the LDF
- Understand better their own developmental 'frame' and their own development agenda
- Work collaboratively with others in exploring the uses and ethical considerations of this framework.

The training intensive experience

The training intensive integrates learning at four levels. Firstly participants learn about adult development and the LDF. Secondly they develop coaching and change agent skills using the LDF. Thirdly they understand the framework through the lens of their own developmental journey and finally this learning is deepened by a rich community engaged as co-inquirers.

Included in the cost of the programme is follow-on support in conducting LDF debriefs.

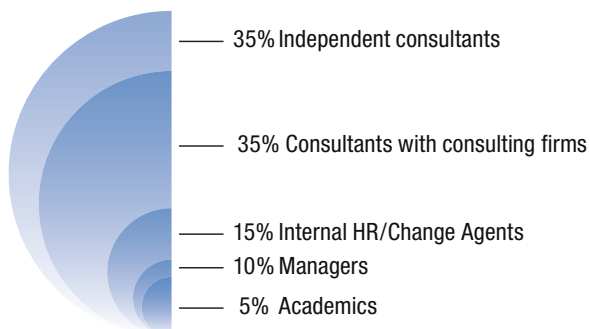

How will participants benefit by attending?

- You will experience a rich fusion of personal and professional development
- Your coaching and mentoring skills will be extended to include this developmental model
- You'll be part of the growing community of LDF practitioners
- You'll be authorised to use the Leadership Development Profile (only authorised users may commission profiles for others) subject to meeting our criteria.

Who is this training for?

Anyone who plays an active part in the development of others. This includes HR staff, internal or external consultants, change agents, recruiters, and leaders who coach or mentor their staff.

Those who have attended previous training intensives include:

“...learning of the lenses through which we see the world created immense value for me.”

Kim Frerichs, Red Frog Coaching & Consulting, USA

“...quite unexpectedly I found the course profoundly moving in two senses - moving as an emotional, intense, intimate experience, and moving in terms of being transformational”

Dr John Derry, NHS Advisor

“...the material covered has enhanced everything I'm offering personally and professionally - a whole new level of insight has been integrated that is empowering for me and those I work with.”

Barbara Murray, Independent Consultant, Barcelona

“This framework has given me unique perspectives on the development of post-conventional leadership capability and helped me radically rethink development strategies.”

Martin Woods, ex-Management Development Manager, Aviva

“I am delighted and grateful for the quality of the trainers at this event. I have felt in the hands of people who are expert at what they know and who LIVE what the whole thing is about. A very, very big thank you.”

Nicholas Janni,
Associate Director,
Olivier Mythodrama

About the Leadership Development Framework

Meaning making – the missing perspective.

The Leadership Development Framework describes sequential stages of development (Action Logics) through which adults may progress during their lifespan. Crucially, different leadership capabilities are evident at each successive Action Logic - leadership transforms with each step. Extensively researched and validated, it describes what promotes and impedes development to each successive stage.

About the Leadership Development Profile

The Leadership Development Profile reveals the action logic of a leader (see below). In a unique process, unfinished sentences are completed by the person being profiled. A sophisticated dual analysis of the responses produces the person's 'meaning making' profile. The analysis process has very high validity and reliability on a range of measures.

Authorisation criteria

In order to be authorised to use Harthill's Leadership Development Profile individuals must:

- Successfully attend the Transforming Leadership programme
- Conduct two LDP debriefs within four months of attending the programme

Note - The training intensive does not equip you to score sentence completion forms; it trains you to interpret LDF profiles once the sentence completion forms have been analysed by highly trained scorers.

Facilitators:

Jackie Keeley is a founder of Harthill, an organisational consultant, coach and aspiring film-maker. Her passion is to enable people to use all of their intelligences to increase their capacity for leading and for cultivating an endless spirit of inquiry. Her current focus is to direct and produce films that will illuminate more fully the LDF. This autumn, Jackie has been invited to judge the new Transformational Change of the Year category at the National Business Awards.

Jane Allen is a Director of Harthill, generously stewarding the development of the LDF and Action Inquiry for many years. Her enthusiasm is for getting alongside individuals, groups and organisations to draw out their knowledge, wisdom and potential. Jane plies her craft through coaching, team building and intervening strategically within organisations at a senior level.
